

Slowpokes

Slowpokes is singer-songwriter Rebecca Turner's 2nd full-length album, a layercake of country, powerpop, rock and folk, featuring '70s AM radio harmonies, unapologetic drums and shimmering pedal steel...plus Rebecca's voice, by turns delicate and soaring, conveying all the tension and wistfulness that a few years in New Jersey can produce in a girl.

A powerhouse core band consisting of Steve Goulding (Mekons/Waco Brothers/Graham Parker), Rod Hohl (Mary Lee's Corvette, Yarn), and Andy Hess (Gov't Mule) did the basic tracks, with special appearances by the Cucumber's Deena Shoshkes on vocals, and multi-instrumentalist Boo Reiners (Klezomatics).

Soul-stirring Laurel Canyon rockers abide alongside radio-ready country-pop and gentle folk idylls. Rebecca's bittersweet lyrics address a moody lover, the joys of a home-grown music scene, and the vicissitudes of life and love in big cities and suburban towns.

Americana U.K. said of Rebecca's first CD Land of My Baby (2005): "This is a record that is hard not to like...it is easy to fall under its spell." Bruce Brodeen of Not Lame said "Turner sings with the angelic beauty of early Linda Ronstadt, Laura Nyro, Susanna Hoffs, Robin Lane and Susan Cowsill. Big names to throw out, yes, but listen...and then nod in agreement."
